

The Bolger Challenge

FamilyForward is embarking on a groundbreaking initiative to create a sensory path at our Developmental Trauma Campus, aimed at addressing sensory and motor delays in children affected by developmental trauma.

We understand the crucial role that sensory, motor, and limbic systems play in the emotional and behavioral regulation of children. This outdoor path will provide children with opportunities for climbing, music creation, and sensory exploration. Every element of the path is designed to enhance outdoor play experiences, nurturing sensory and motor development, and supporting the growth and healing of the children we serve.

"We want to help both caregivers and the children learn how to interact together in nature. So, when they encounter these kinds of experiences on their own, whether it be in-nature or at-home, they can feel confident from the learning experiences they had on the sensory path." - Lisa von Wahle, Director of Therapy

Benefits:

- ▶ Sensory integration helps children with sensory-processing difficulties
- ▶ Over 2,800 children and families will receive services at the Developmental Trauma Center in 2024
- ▶ Every child and family we serve will have access to, and benefit from the sensory path
